Dear Associate Editors

I have been in contact with each of you recently, but have not told you my personal news. I have decided to retire after 13 years with Elsevier, not just to 'spend more time with my family' as the saying goes, but to undertake a personal project which I have not had time for so far.

There are always ongoing matters for any business interaction, and Fire Safety Journal is no exception. José and I have discussed the strategy for 2013, and he will be taking this forward with you all. There is also the relationship with the IAFSS, and I am in touch with Bodzio about this (and no doubt we will continue in the next couple of weeks). If there are other outstanding matters which any of you would like to contact me about, please do so. A Publisher has been appointed to replace me from the beginning of 2013, and he will be in contact fairly early in the new year. His name is Joe D'Angelo, and he has been working for other publishers.

Let me thank you all for your continuing support for Fire Safety Journal. Without your contributions, and support for José the journal would be much the poorer. I wish you all and the journal the very best for 2013.

I hope you enjoy the forthcoming Christmas festivities too.
Noel
