APPENDIX: IAFSS' POLICY ON REGIONAL MEETINGS

Generally, a certain degree of restrictions should be applied to regional meetings, supported by or held in the name of the Association. As the number of fire scientists and fire research bodies is rather limited – compared to the situation for more well-established scientific areas – frequently held regional meetings may lead to a lower scientific quality level and less status for the Association Symposia.

A regional meeting in one of the three Association regions – America, Asia/Australia and Europe – to be sponsored by the Association shall

- have an objective which is in conformity with the objectives of the Association, i.e. “to promote research into the science of preventing and mitigating the adverse effects of fires and the dissemination of the results of such research”,
- focus on a subject which forms part of the subject area of the Association,
- be approved by one of the three vice-chairmen of the Association,
- be organised by members of the Association in at least two countries within the region,
- be held in English, and
- comprise presentations mainly by researchers from the region – the papers being accepted for presentation after a referee procedure, based on abstracts as minimum, being published by Journals, subject to review of the full paper.
